Opening Under Fair Auspices and with a Good Outlook for To-Day. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 14.-The Terre Haute street fair was opened to-night with a mask carnival and a confetti battle. The exhibits and decorations were in a better state of completeness, considering the weather since Friday, than had been expected. The pay shows are everywhere, fully a dozen more of them than at any former street fair. The free shows number six. The association claims to have kept faith with the Ministers' Association, which began objecting months ago to the reappearance of the midway dancing shows. The illumination of the streets is more elaborate than heretofore and this greatly enhances the carnival spirit. The agricultural and live stock show on a side street is of considerable size. Vigo county had no county fair this year, the understanding being that the street fair should offer premiums for farm products and live stock. To-morrow is to be the big day of th week, with the flower parade as the chief attraction. #### Taxing Advertising Signs. Leslie's Weekly. Newspapers, magazines and other pub-business are interested in the very general opposition being manifested in our cities to the billboard nuisance. The suggestion of the New York Tribune that advertising signs be taxed in this country, as they are travel, and the celebration that was to in England, Belgium and France, has been have occurred in his honor Oct. 17 has generally commended. Chicago is one the first cities to make open warfar against the billboard nuisance, and judicial approval has been secured, after a bitter fight, for a new city regulation which places decided limitations upon the number and the superficial area of street signs. The next step should be the passage of a law to tax these signs, and especially the signs in street cars and at elevated and other railroad stations. The franchises of the street-car and elevated lines were granted for purposes of transportation, and not for the conduct of an advertising or any other mercantile business. Newspapers are beginning to discover that the billboards and street-car signs are seriously stantly.
